

INFORMATION SHEET - PENSION EQUALISATION ON DIVORCE

On divorce or dissolution of a registered partnership, the occupational benefit entitlements acquired during the marriage are divided.

Since 2017, these have also been divided if one spouse is already retired or disabled at the time. Pension institutions and vested benefits organisations have also been placed under an obligation to report all holders of pension assets to the Second Pillar Central Office on a periodic basis. In this way, the divorce courts can check that no pension assets are withdrawn from the division arrangement.